A press release from the National Geographic Society about the article, “Did You Know? – Adventures in Vietnam,” by Nguan Tan, and published on December 11, 2012: «The adventure. The adventure is Vietnam’s gift to the world. And the people of Vietnam show us what adventure is really all about. This young, free-spirited nation makes travel come alive, and those who seek it, come home with a new sense of excitement and renewed strength. We join them as they enjoy the company of the new friends they make in their own land.” We think the magazine has the right to be proud of this article, as well as its creative and beautiful illustrations, but we are also ashamed to admit that we have not been able to find any trace of the author, Nguan Tan, from his hometown of Quảng Ngãi, in the “Author Finder” at (or at which offers no information about the author). The author of the article is Nguan Tan (pseudonym, “Diane”), who left Vietnam at the age of 15 and has been living in America since. He is the author of several books on a variety of topics, such as the first book about his life in Vietnam and its main characters. The book “The Myth of the 15th” won the first prize in the Asian fiction category at the International Book Fair “EuroAsia” in Hamburg, Germany, in 2009. In 2011, the book was included in the list of Best Books of the Year, published by the Book Review (China), as a book about “a true life”. The book is a detective novel about a fifteen-year-old boy named Nam, who lives in the southern region of Vietnam, in a town in the province of Quảng Ngãi. Through this book, the author tries to describe the daily life of the people living in Vietnam, as well as the hidden characters and the myths that people have created to avoid facing the reality of their daily lives. The author talks about the article on his blog in his language: Nguan Tan writes in Vietnamese.

The translator of the article is Sue Boyer. 82157476af
